This event is free of charge.

Communication services (sign language interpreters, note takers, real-time captionists, or assistive listening devices) are available for this event. Requests for services must be submitted at least five (5) working days in advance.

Please join the California State University, Northridge Center for Southern California Studies for this important discussion.

Southern California, like many urban areas, has seen an explosion in the unhoused population. Our guests will discuss the shortage of safe and affordable housing, as well as, the social and economic conditions that continue to push more people into homelessness.
